

Junior Mountaineering Team

Program Description

Montana Mountaineering Association is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization with a mission to promote the values of rock climbing, mountaineering, and backcountry travel. In alignment with that purpose, MMA is proud to introduce – for the first time in the United States – a Junior Mountaineering Team. Under the tutelage of highly qualified and experienced instructors, this program provides high school students with an opportunity to begin a life-long apprenticeship of alpine climbing. The goal of this program is to give enthusiastic kids the tools they need to explore their local mountains and the adventures that lay beyond: to make them alpinists. The team meets for instruction throughout the year and will cover topics such as: knots, harnesses, ropes, anchors, belaying, rappelling, rock climbing, ice climbing, backcountry travel, and self rescue. Trip planning and logistics is also covered in preparation for an extended climbing trip in the summer.

Schedule

Generally two Saturdays each month – all day, and sometimes overnight. There will be some exceptions like holidays, and special events.

Expenses

Instruction and group gear: Free
Personal gear: $0-$500
Bridger Bowl pass: $37
Gas: $5-20 per session
Lodging and food: $100-$200

* Money can be earned in the annual Sandbag Sufferfest to offset these expenses.

Every team member is also responsible for their own transportation expenses.

For further information please contact Kevin Brumbach at (208) 420-6842